GP/IP

Little Red Riding Hood is loving and obedient, since she's been sent on an errand by her mother. She must be trustworthy to carry out the task, but also innocent and naive because she's unafraid of the wolf when they first meet. It also takes her a bit to recognize the wolf pretending to be her grandmother once she reaches the house. When she does, she is scared. Once the woodsman comes to their rescue, we find out that both the girl and the grandmother return to their merry ways and eat the food she has delivered.

- nice / kind / sweet
- caring

The mother is trusting as she sends Red to deliver food to her grandmother. She is also naive and unaware as she sends the little girl on the journey through the woods alone without an adult, which isn't very safe.

The grandmother lives in the woods, a fair journey for Red Riding Hood to make to arrive at her cottage. She is both ill and weak, and needs the nourishment from the food packed away by Red Riding Hood's mother for her health. She's a woman who is aged (old) and frail and unable to get around easily. We know this because when the wolf arrives at the house, he is able to snatch the grandmother up and eat her. The old woman isn't even able to get out of the bed to answer the door, and invites the wolf in.

- gentle
- nice
- friendly

The wolf meets Red in the woods on her journey to her grandmother's house. The wolf first presents himself as friendly to the girl, but it's all an act. He's trying to trick her into telling him what she's carrying in her basket and where she's headed. When the girl acts unafraid and speaks to him, he is able to get the information he wants and starts to hatch a plan.

- evil / wicked / cruel / mean
