

Y3/4 – Computing – Writing for Different Audiences

DI

Have a look at this cover of a newspaper. Is all the text the same size? Colour? Font?

No it isn't and there is a reason for this and this is to make different parts of the newspaper eye-catching.

The part that says 'Not too cool for school' is called the headline. This is a short sentence to tell us what the main news story is about. It is in capital letters so that it stands out. The writers of the newspaper have made sure that the sentence is short, is written in capital letters and in different colours to catch people's attention and make them want to read their newspaper.

The story written below it is in smaller text. This is because there is lots of information to read. It is usually written in black so it is easy to read.

GP/IP

1. Log onto Purple Mash.
2. Click on the search bar.
3. Type into the search bar 'Unformatted Newspaper 1'.
4. Open the document and complete.

In this task, I would like you to fix the newspaper article.

Currently, the text is all the same size and it doesn't stand out. Can you fix it to make it more like the front page of a newspaper?
